EARTH TONES

Introducing Earth Tones.
A stylish range of coloured bathroom ceramics handmade in Italy.

Earth Tones comes in 4 nature inspired matt finish colours –
Sand, Slate, Quartz and Chalk.

Strong

Earth Tones is a new line of coloured ceramics designed for customers looking to make a sophisticated statement
with their bathroom, ensuite or cloakroom.

Subtle

Earth Tones' subtle natural shades offer customers the chance to create a room that is bold in design, without being audacious.

Sophisticated

Leaning on the sophistication of nature's awesome design,
Earth Tones' 4 unique colours
exude a contradiction of power and serenity.

4 harmonious hues

The 4 nature inspired hues of Earth Tones make a bold statement while embodying the calmness of nature.

Sand

See pages 40 - 41 for further details.

Slate

See pages 42 - 43 for further details.

Chalk

See pages 44 - 45 for further details.

Quartz

See pages 46 - 47 for further details.

Handmade In Italy

Handmade in Italy, this sanitary ware naturally embodies the stylish traits we've come to expect from Italian craftsmen.

Masters of ceramics, their attention to detail and careful selection of materials leads to an elegance in the expression of the final concept. We have focused on quality and style, centred around customer needs - leading to an aesthetic and ergonomic design which is stylish and sophisticated yet highly functional.

Earth Tones - Sand

Sand

Perhaps more than any other natural material, sand is a reminder of the awesome power of nature. Once huge boulders of rock and minerals - now, pounded by nature's force over millennia, the bulky and sharp has settled into refined soft, tactile particles that invites the sense of touch.

The colour Sand has the quality to evoke feelings of warmth and calmness which is much needed in today's busy hectic lifestyle. Sand creates a neutral environment, conveys a sense of solidity, maturity and an air of class. Sand is seen as an element for communicating stability and harmony.

Earth Tones - Slate

Slate

Slate is a rock with a dual personality - hard in tensile strength, yet easily split smoothly and evenly along its natural, flowing grain. This hardy, yet complex nature has a lot to do with its tough geological journey - derived from shale or mudstone that has experienced intense heat or pressure beneath the earth's surface.

The colour slate is solid and stable, yet subdued; calm with composure. It has a steadying effect on other colours with which it comes into contact. With the ability to tone down the stronger and brighter colours, and illuminating the softer shades, this unobtrusive quality conducts a firm foundation to create from.

Earth Tones - Chalk

Chalk

So pure in its appearance, its true nature is always a surprise. Chalk is a gradual accumulation of minute calcite shells shed from micro-organisms, formed under deep marine conditions. It is a reminder of both the beautiful yet quirkily organised nature of our planet and the small window of time with which we are blessed to experience it.

The surface of chalk has a powdery, non-reflective, matt quality. It is immaculate and precise, yet has its own unique warmth. This natural off-white hue amplifies feelings of purity, youth and simplicity.

Earth Tones - Quartz

Quartz

Quartz's crystalline nature ensures it stands out from the crowd - easily spotted as a geological seam or as fragments amongst collections of other minerals. In its purest form Quartz is completely transparent, but more often than not its impure forms take on many beautiful unearthly shades. Geologically it 'knows itself' - its crystal lattice does not require any specific temperature or pressure to form, occurring naturally from the presence of its component parts.

Quartz as a colour is linked to purity, perfection and completion. Its natural cloudy tone is often associated with fairness and neutrality. Making it a firm choice for those who prefer something a little different.
